Five Good Practices of email etiquettes

1) Do not overuse “Reply to All”
2) Use “cc:” field sparingly. Use “bcc:” field when sending mass emails to all staff (or a huge group of people)
3) Ensure email includes a courteous greeting and closing. Use proper spelling, grammar, and punctuation. Take care with the use of abbreviations and emoticons.
4) Read the email before you send it. Do not discuss confidential information.
5) Set informative out-of-office notifications
